Q: Increasing the number of hard disk space without installation of OS I have been using Win 7 Ultimate with 60GB of physical memory and OS is installed in C:. However my work required me to leave my OS for the day and have to go. Can I do a combination of following without having to install the OS? 1. Installing a new OS in other drive like D:? (a.k.a cloning the OS). 2. Using Boot Camp? 3. Packing the data in a PNY USB flash drive? 4. Is there any other method to increase the hard disk space without reinstalling the OS? Thank you. A: You can install another OS in a second partition on the same hard drive (C:), or you can create a third partition and install Windows 7 in this one. Just delete C: to free disk space. If you clone your disk with a bootable ISO you will get a second copy of the Windows Operating system, but you don't have the possibility to reuse existing Windows files and programs.
